Disposal of Drill Cuttings and Development Water at Greenacres
Landfill, Spokane County, Washington

THRU: Kene Fuentes, ESD
John Osborn, DPDO

After reviewing the data from the monitoring wells installed by Ecology and Environment at the Greenacres landfill site, we believe that the drill cuttings and development water from those wells are not hazardous waste and can be disposed of on site. Other trash and miscellaneous articles can be disposed of at any local landfill. The drums can be saved and reused as desired.
